Since the fall, issues of race and exclusion have weighed heavily on many of us, students, faculty, and administrators alike. In acknowledgement of the seriousness and importance of these issues for our institution, and in consultation with General Committee, I have decided that Thursday, April 8, 2004 will be dedicated to a day-long, all-college teach-in on issues of race, racism, and exclusion. All classes and academic appointments will be cancelled for the day.

General Committee will be planning this event. Please contact any member of the committee to offer suggestions for events during the day and for volunteering to work with us.
